- Following the return of HO Ying-chin to Nanking on 9 April, Governor HSUEH Yueh of Kwangtung convened a conference of provincial military and political leaders for the purpose of developing a policy for the present situation.
 - Among the decisions reached were the following:
 - No recognition of any settlement between the Nanking Government and the Communists which involves "surrender."
 - Settlement on a territorial basis to be acceptable if the Communists are kept out of South China militarily and politically.
 - Adamant opposition to any settlement involving political coalition within the southern provinces.
 - All possible efforts to be made to improve the military position of Kwangtung in order to resist Communist incursion.
 - Cantonese members of the Legislative Yuan and the National Assembly are generally in accord with these decisions.
